Campylobacter and Listeria infections in the EU

The annual report on zoonoses and foodborne outbreaks in the European Union in 2014 was published in December 2015. The European Food Safety Authority (EFSA) press release highlighted that human cases of listeriosis and campylobacteriosis continued to show a rise that began in 2008. For members' information a link to the press release and the report are given below.
